The ten volumes contain thousands of scenes photographed between 1861-65 by Matthew B. Brady and many others. Each volume is divided into sections or chapters with articles written by many special authorities on the Civil War edited by Francis Trevelyan Miller (1911-12). 3,629 Photographs taken in the war between 1861-65 accompanied by additional text that identifies people, places or situations plus a wealth of information and reference making this a must have set for any Civil War historian. The military movements of the Armies and Navies were studied extensively to properly stage the great scenes that are presented in these volumes. This collection also includes a chronological summary and record of historical events and of important engagements of the Union and Confederate Army and Navy. These volumes provide a unique opportunity to see the realities of a war that tore a country apart, not just read about the battles, soldiers and statistics.
