Subtitle: Devotions for Athletes

Often an injury to a key player will alter a team's strategy as it prepares for the next opponent,. The coaching staff must analyze the situation and make early decisions to prepare. Sometimes, a last minute injury or recovery from an injury forces a "game day" decision. The outcome of the game may depend upon those "game day" decisions.As Christianity spread throughout the world in the first century, many obstacles opposed the movement. When the gospel reached a new area, false religious teachers often tried to pervert the truth. The writers of the New Testament wrote several short letters to help believers make "game day" decisions about what to believe on critical issues. This book will help you to understand and to apply seven of these letters to the game of life Coach Elliot Johnson has used sports stories and their relationship to the Bible to help thousands of coaches, athletes and fans to understand Biblical truth in more than twenty Christian sports devotionals. Included in these lessons are commentary on Galatians, Hebrews, James, First, Second and Third John, and Jude.
