They say that all drug dealers eventually get caught. But I'm proof they don't. I'm not what you'd think. I'm not in a gang and I've never killed anybody. My business was as straightforward as any other: I bring the product, you bring the cash, we make the exchange, and voila. It went like this 99% of the time.

Being a mid-level cocaine dealer in Hollywood, California, I bypassed a lot of the dirt and negativity associated with drug use and dealing.

Coke is, after all, a rich man's drug. Businessmen, actors, singers, music executives, and big shot movie producers made up most of my clientele.

I promised myself that I would make as much money as I could-- in six months. After six months I'm out. In that .5 a year I made a bundle of cash, experienced places and situations I never would have otherwise, rubbed shoulders (and railed lines) with Hollywood big shots, and became the source of the party for some A-list celebrities.

Some of it may seem unbelievable; some of it will seem outright stupid... For what it's worth, I assure you it's all true, to the best of my recollection.

This is part 1 of 2: the first three months.
