Excerpt from Spiritism and Religion: "Can You Talk to the Dead?"; Including a Study of the Most Remarkable Cases of Spirit Control

For five long years of war we have been living daily in the shadow of the hand of God. There has been no one of us untouched. The purge of suffering has been withheld from no man or woman. Alike we have had to bear the common burden and inspire ourselves to the thought of loss as well as gain.

No matter what our religion, our minds have been confronted daily with the awful yet wonderful and thrilling presence of the Hereafter. No one can escape the thought of it, the fact of it; nor can any one escape the relentless questioning that it forces upon every mind capable of even momentary thought.

The only serene questioning has been, and can be, that of the man whose faith is sure, whose grasp of Revelation is firm and steady. There is no barrier between him and his God, no wall of mystery or uncertainty about his dear and noble dead, that he has neither eyes to pierce nor power to climb. Neither is there in his heart a hunger after impossible, unobtainable knowledge of the realm beyond our bourne of time and place. He has already beheld it with the eyes and heard its story with the ears of Revelation, and knows that it is fair. The only longing he can have is longing for it and for the company of the great, courageous souls who have fought the fight for liberty and justice and are now resting from the battle. Of them and of their destiny he has no questioning. He waits only the hour of his own summons, and until that golden moment goes on his way in peace.

This book on Spiritism is scholarly; it is scientific; it is sound in its thinking. I consider it a real advance in the literature of Spiritism.
