Vampire Summer: A Short Story Pandie James

There are vampires living in Wellington, New Zealand. They feed on the young and hopeless, the wretched and the lost...

VAMPIRE SUMMER a Short Story is a vampire tale from Pandie James, author of urban fantasy/paranormal romance novel 'Seraphim Song.' Set in Wellington, New Zealand, the author's home town, the story follows one girl's descent into the terrifying and lovely world of a beautiful creature with obsidian for eyes and porcelain for flesh.

Pandie James also models and acts under the stage name 'Pandie Suicide.' She is the writer, producer and plays the lead role of Marianne in the award-winning short slasher film 'Massacre', directed by Erik Boccio and starring Billy Morrison, London May, Jeff Hilliard, Katy Foley, Jeordie White and Rob Patterson.

Author's note: This story has been kept in its original British English form to stay true to its storyline set in New Zealand, a British Colony. For this reason some words such as 'colour' will be spelled differently from American spellings (color) and this is entirely intentional for this edition.

VAMPIRE SUMMER a Short Story by Pandie James is a little over 6000 words, or around 30 pages. It is a quick read and not a full novel. If you'd prefer a novel length work, please check out SERAPHIM SONG.
