The Civil War Adventures of Edmond D. Potter & His Three Companions: From Edmond D. Potter's Letters to His Wife Emeline, Her Letters to Him

This book is a compilation of the letters around the Civil War by Edmond D Potter and his wife Emiline S Bernard Potter. . . . American loyalty leaped into instant action. Little did the country know that this war would be a tragedy in American history, yet it was a war that had to be fought. My grandfather was one of the men who responded to President Lincoln's call to defend the Union. - Helen Mead Blakeslee Edmond's letters were more dramatic, as in the one he sent from Harper's Ferry, Virginia, after the ferocious battle there. "About the time that I was grabbing for my pistol a ball struck me on my left hip and knocked me out of my saddle. But I happened to grab my horse with one hand by the main (sic) and was soon in my saddle again. I then put spurs to my horse and yelled to him to get out of this! - Edmond Potter In one of the letters Edmond speaks of seeing the White House as it was being built. He was impressed with the size and magnitude of this great undertaking.
