Note-taking for Consecutive Interpreting: A Short Course (Translation Practices Explained) Andrew Gillies

Aimed at students of conference interpreting, whether on university and professional training courses or self-learners, Note-Taking for Consecutive Interpreting - A short Course offers future interpreters a step-by-step guide to the skill of note-taking, which forms an essential part of consecutive interpreting. The system proposed, made up of a range of tried and tested techniques, is simple to learn, consistent and efficient.

This is a book which can be read at one sitting, but is designed to be worked through over a number of months. Each chapter presents a technique, together with examples, tasks and exercises for the reader to complete - true to the motto "learning by doing". The book uses English throughout, explaining how and where to locate material for other languages. It thus constitutes a course which offers student interpreters in any language combination a sound and adaptable base on which to build as they develop their skills. It will also be a valuable resource for interpreter trainers looking for innovative ways of approaching this core element of interpreter competence.

As a pupil, I exactly feel bored in order to reading. If their teacher asked them to go to the library or even make a summary for some e-book, they are complained. Just very little students that have reading's spirit or real their hobby. They just do what the educator wants, like asked to go to the library. They go to presently there but nothing reading seriously. Any students feel that looking at it is not important, boring and can't see colorful images on there. Yeah, it is to get complicated.
